Special Considerations for Final Exams (2026 S1 update)

1. Special considerations for final exams of Computer Science and Software Engineering courses are resolved via a remedial examination.
2. Notify the course coordinator by email that you have applied or intend to apply for special consideration.
3. If at the time of the remedial final exam your special-consideration application has not yet been decided, you must sit the remedial final exam. The marks of the remedial final exam will only be considered if your application for special consideration is approved. If it is declined, your final grade will be based on your marks up until and including the final exam.
4. If your special consideration application is approved and you sit both the original exam and the remedial final exam, only the marks from the remedial final exam will be used. The outcome of the special consideration process may result in either a Pass/Fail grade (P, F) or a letter grade (for example, A-, B, C+, D, E); this is determined by the individual course.
5. The remedial final exam will take place on campus approximately one to three weeks after the final-exam period ends. Please keep this in mind when planning holidays or other activities after the exam period. Failure to attend the scheduled remedial exam does not entitle a student to secondary remedy.
